

Managing for Growth

Economists, including our frequent guest speaker Brian Beaulieu, are indicating the recession is approaching the half-way point. During these times, entrepreneurs are recommended to focus on:

- Avoiding long-term purchase commitments, as opportunities to secure goods at lower prices should occur in the near future.
- Eliminating all overtime, instead increasing productivity during regular business hours.
- Combining departments, notably those with like capabilities which will help reduce the associated management.
- Opportunistically procuring assets that will allow market share gains as the next business cycle begins.
